(This peculiar and half-mystical poem much, though, we fear, not many will understand it.-Eo. Passe;

Fines;

Flow, flow the waves hated,
Accused, adored,
The waves of mutation:
Ne anchorage is.
Sicep is not, death is not;
Who secon to die live.
House you were born in.
Friends of your spring time,
Old man and young made,
Day's toil and its gurdom,
They are all vanishing.
Flocing to fables,
Can not be moored.
See the stars through them,
Through treacherous marbles,
Know, the stars younder,
The stars everlaning,
And emulate, vanithed,
The lambent heat, lightning. The lambent heat-lightning, and fire-fly a flight. When thou dost return

When thou dost return in the wave's circulation, Etholding the abiliamer, The wild distinction, And, out of endeavor To change and to flow, The gas become solid. And phantoms and nothings Meturn to be things. And endless imbrustio is law and the world. Then first shall thou know, That in the wild termell, Herrset on the Proteus, Thou rifest to power.

Alexandre Dumas's Account of the King of

The following sketch of the King of Sardinia, from the pen of Alexandre Dumas, appears in the Independence, of Naples:

Victor Emmanuel, who looks like a man Victor Smmanuet, who looks like a man of about forty years of age, is frank, sincere, vigorous, temperate, an early riser, and a keen sportsman with gun and dog. He bears the fatigues of a long day's shooting better than many of the most active mountaineers, and he generally starts on such excursions before sunrise. He eats a very light breakfast, merely a piece of bread and a slice of cold meat or cheese, which he eats like a reasant, without sitting at table; but like a peasant, without sitting at table; but he always makes a hearty dinner, laying aside all etiquette, without court or cham-

On Sunday, the day of general receptions at the palace, the doors are thrown open at eleven o'clock, and any body who feels dis-posed may enter till three. If any person desires a private audience, he must apply by letter, and on the morrow or following day he will surely obtain it, for Victor Em-manuel opens all his letters himself.

"It was not a miss, was it?" responded the King "Perhaps you could rid me of a fox which steals my hens.

"Most willingly. "It you do I will give you two mutte" (seventy francs).
"Agreed,' said the King; "I will come, to-morrow morning with my dog and shoot your fex."

"Give me your hand on it," said the man. The King immediately shook hands with him, and, true to his word, went the next morning, found the fox, and shot it.

"Thank God for that!" exclaimed the peasant; "you have fairly earned your two mutte, and there they are."

The King took them and said, "This is the first money I ever earned." Then tossing up the pieces in his hand, he added, "It is a pleasure to receive money one has fairly

The next day, in exchange for the two mutte, His Majesty sent a dress, necklace and ear-rings for the peasant's wife. It is impossible to be more easy of access than Victor Emmanuel. He goes out alone on foot, and enters the theaters at the public door. One day the porteress of the Angennes Theater caught a gentleman in the act of puffing the smoke of a cigar at her cat, which he had found in a corner and kept there. Rushing forward to rescue her favorite, she seized the termentor by the arm and on his turning round, recognized the most natural order. Balzac is what Thack-eray would be had Thackerny been born a Frenchman; as it is, while the one is of the French Frenchy, the other is of the English intersely English. Thackeray takes his stand firmly on ground which he knows is unshakable, poises his bright but treuchant blade, and deals manful blows for the right; Balzac, on the other hand, cares not where be plants himself, but dances around with he plants himself, but dances around with his flexible rapier, cutting lightly every where, and little caring whether he stabs a virtue or thrusts at a vice. Both are witty, cynical and satirical. But while Balzac laughs at vice with all a Frenchman's lightness, and much of a Frenchman's sympathy, Thackeray grasps it with the muscle of an English mind and shakes it with the heartiness of a double English hate. But the Frenchman's wit is wonderful, and the rap-dity with which he perceives and conveys

He flashes a chapter of meaning at you in He flashes a chapter of meaning at you in a sentence and pins a dozen characters before your eyes in a paragraph. To read him is like sitting down to have a chat with Mephistophiles. You find your companion witty and wise but wofully wicked. You would scarcely like to introduce him to the acquaintance of your wife, or commend him to the companionship of your daughters. The Petty Annoyance of Married Life is a brilliant book; wit sparkles on every page like ice-drops on fountain-lilles of a winter day, but the gems are as cold as they are day, but the gems are as cold as they are clear. You wonder at the man who could write such a book; you wonder still more at the state of society which caused it to be written. And you close the volume with a fully-formed resolution to shorten your stay in sunny France next summer, and lengthen your cojourn in England, willing to forget and forgive the fogs of the latter country for the comparative purity of its moral atmosphere. atmosphere.

MAGNIFICENT DESCRIPTION,-Rev. George. Croy, recently deceased, thus described in his Salathiel the portentous sword that hung over Jerusalem : To my astonishment, the cloud suddenly changed its color; from white it became in-tensely red, and in a few moments more it burst into a flame that threw a broad reflec-tion upon the whole atmosphere. It was palpably a wast falchien of fire, the center of a fiery halo. And from that hour to the last of the glorious and unhappy city of David, that flaming sword, the reign of wrath pre-dicted 1,000 years before, blazed day and night over Jerusalem. * * The omin-ous sword for the first time met her eye. The blaze, which even in noon-day was fearburst into a flame that threw a broad reflec-The blaze, which even in noon-day was fear-fully visible, in midulght was tremendous. A blade of the deepest hue of gore stretched over the wast horizon, pouring from its edge perpetual streams and showers of crimson lame that looked like showers of fresh blood. Boundless slaughter was in the em-blem. Heyond it, the circle of the sky was wan; the stars sickened, and the moon, though at the full, hung like an orb of lead. The mighty falchion, the pledge of a terrible and inevitable judgment, extinguished all the beneficent splendors of heaven.

SLOW GROWTH OF PENNSYLVANIA .- The population of Pennsylvania, according to the ceasus of 1860, is 2,913,441, an increase of Consult of the the control of the control of the College, twenty-six per control to the power. This is a lower ratio than has prevailed in any former decade sluce the formation of the Federal Covernment. There is no doubt, however, that Pennsylvania is the second State in the Union for population.

THE INDIAN MANSACRES IN TEXAS.—The Belton Independent of the 15th instant has the following: "Mr. Gross, who just came from Core, says the Indians have murdered thirty-six persons in their foray. Every thing is a flame of excitament."

WONETARY AND COMMERCIAL.

The I inancial feeling continued to improv during the week ending last evening, and the movement in Monetary matters was more active than during the week previous, with a more healthful condition of trade generally. The demand for Money was not very great, but it was large in proportion to the supply, which decreased steadily, the city balances being considerably lower last | ness. evening than they were at the close of the previous week, The Money market can not be called any thing but decidedly stringent, and though | legal limit. Good paper is done in the the Bankers have recently been extending their line of discounts, the facilities for obtaining loans continue limited and much very good Paper is thereby rejected for want of means to accept it. In the regular quarter the rates for prime Paper to particular customers are, as before, 10@12 per cent. but in outside circles capital can be employed readily at 24@30 per cent. per annum.

Exchange on Boston and New York declined 1/2 per cent. during the week, closing last evening at % premium, though some houses were still asking le. premium. At this rate the market was steady, though not very active; dealers giving 14@14c. for Checks on the two points. Baltimore and Philadelphia Drafts underwent little change, but prices are still irregular, and transactions on those places limited.

Gold is lower than it was, and can not b sold better than 1 premium, while dealers give 14 for all that is offered. There are orders here from the Ohio and Kentucky Banks, but the local need is quite small,

In New Orleans Exchange there were few operations during the week, because of the great scarcity of Southern funds. None of the Banks wish to accumulate balances there, and many of the Bills offered are not saleable. The demand for New Orleans is good, and %@1 premium the rate for firstclass Drafts, while 1/61/2 is the buying

Time-bills were very quiet during the week, and there were few transactions worthy of mention beyond some Eastern thirtyday Drafts made by the Pork operators. Uncurrent Money, especially Western Currency, improved, quite a local demand having sprung up during the week, and our resent quotations are as annexed: Indiana Stock, specie-paying, 2; Pennsylvania (interior), 5; New Jersey (not par in New York City), 5; Virginia, Wheeling and Branches, 8; other solvent Virginia, 10; Missouri, 13, 11; Illinois, solvent, 13, 14; Illinois, suspended, 20; Maryland (interior), 5; Tonnessee, old Banks, 10; free Banks 10, 20; Michigan and Canada, 5; Alabama (Mobile), 10; Alabama (interior), 10, 10; the Carolinas, 10, 10; and interior), 10@15; the Carolinas, 10@15; and Georgia, 10 discount. The rates for Exchange and Coin, though somewhat varying with different dealers,

The demand for Flour improved yesterday, and prices went up 25c., closing at $4 40@4 50 for superfine, and $4 75@5 50 for the higher grades. Whisky was in good demand, and advanced Mc. per gallon. Sugar and Coffee were unchanged, but Molasses was lc. lower. Wheat, Outs, Rye, and prime Barley were firm, and Corn advanced le. per bush. Provisions were firm: Mess Pork being in fair lemand at $14 75, and holders asking $15. Lard and green meats were in good den with limited transactions in bulk Meat.

Hogs were in active demand yesterday, at the opening of the market, advancing at least 20c. per cental, and closing with a fair demand at $5 60@5 70 for good animals. The sales reached some 1,500 head at $5,50@

Our Tuesday's New York exchanges say of fonday's Stock market: The Stock market has been very dull today, the principal part of the morning ression being devoted to a discussion of the Washington defalcation, and whether the ab-Washington defalcation, and whether the ab-stracted Bonds could be recovered by Gov-ernment from parties who had bought them in good faith. We have an impression that this question has already been fully settled by the Supreme Court of the United States in favor of the holders of the Bonds, but we can not recall the particulars of the case. The announcement of the defalcation and the doubt in regard to the course of the Govern-ment in the premises, threw a chill over the ment in the premises, threw a chill over the market, and the result was, a moderate amount of business and a declining tendency amount of business and a declining tendency in prices, withous any important change, excepting in Panama, which fell off to 117%, having been 121 on Saturday. The bears made no special demonstration, although a majority of the Time transactions were on seller's option. There appeared to be little disposition to operate upon either side, the principal purchases being made to cover short contracts. At the Second Board the market was very dull. After the regular sersion the market continued to droop, and late in the afternoon, most of the leading operators having left the street, lower prices were established.

Tuesday's Tribune observes respecting last week's New York Bank Statement:

week's New York Bank Statement:

The Bank Statement shows a continued expansion in the principal items. The Loan line shows only a moderate increase, which is partly the result of the reduced wants of Bank-dealers, and partly of the lack of first-clars Paper in the offerings. The Special line is now over $20,000,000 in the average, and is actually to-day ever $21,500,000, out of which $200,000 goes to-night to New Orleans. The Deposit line is very large, by resson of the Specia arrivals from Europe, and the usual concentration of funds here for the payment of interest, &c., at the close of the year.
